

ATLANTIS,

AND PARADISE, IN FINLAND?

The question about Atlantis, where it was, and when, as a paradise, has bothered us for a long time, ever since the antiquity, when that name came into limelight for the first time. Plato brought that name into being when he told that his grandfather had heard about it from Egyptian priests. They had told that it was an island of paradise somewhere behind the two pillars of Atlas, that is, behind the Gibr-altar, (?) which is just anywhere outside the Mediterranean world. (Those Greeks had left Finland 3 600 years ago)

So where it was then? We have speculated dozens of different places, and among them also the group of the seven small islands in front of present Helsinki, in Finland, from where the world was governed, before the ice-age, and about that I am to tell you now.

The search of Atlantis is connected to the ice-age of which beginning we don't know too much about, but the end of it we know quite well here in Finland, from the annals of one family here, the Bock, who have kept a counting of years ever since, they say, as the Bock Saga, and this is part of it.

The ice-age started when the globe turned its northern part suddenly away from the sun, so sudden that the mammoths in Siberia died with fresh food in their stomachs, but here in Finland they lived thru it quite a normal life, which we can see from their bones that has been found here, their ages being 15 900, 23 000, 30 000 and over 40 000 years, verified with the radiocarbon tests. Also the people had been able to survive here, as the warm Atlantic Golf Stream turned to flow over present Denmark and Baltic countries to the Gulf of Finland, where it formed a strong whirl with a hole in the center, (from which Golf play got its name, hole in the center of green) keeping its coasts free from ice and fit to life.

Then the ice around grew quite soon to be two or even three kilometers thick, which barred their way to get out from here, or anybody else to get in, they were trapped.

This time they called "allt landt is" (in root language) which means "all land icy" which turned to be called ATLANTIS, by other people around, later on.

So it was a time as well a place, just that group of seven islands in front of Helsinki, called Viapuri. (the first part "via" means that the original Meridian to divide the globe into east and west started and ended there, going by the northernmost point of Europe, and most southern point of Africa, (the route Palin took too) and through the group of the seven Hawaiian islands,(with islands of Sun and Moon) also dividing the island of Crete in two and going very close to the Egyptian pyramids and the oasis of Shiwa where the Pharaos were crowned) The second part "puri" means a castle for fertility rites. The ice-age lasted long enough for the people to become white skinned and blue eyed, as earlier all the people had been colored, either yellow, brown, blue/black, or red, so the white "race" started by an accident!

ATLANTIS, AND PARADISE, IN FINLAND?

But let's go to the time when the ice-age ended. It so happened that the globe again turned this northern part towards the sun to warm it again, the thick ice plate started to melt, causing a huge flood, and cracked in two by the Norwegian mountain range, the eastern half sliding to south-east, destroying everything from its path and pushing the earth to the Estonian side, where we can still see the mounds of them, and honing our bed-rock shores nicely bare and smooth for us to sunbath there now.

And that happened just 10 000 years ago, counted from the year 1984, according to the annals of that Bock family. They had been ruling the whole world from here from the time beginning, and seeing the inevitable to happen, they built the ark (kind of ship) to put domestic animals and vegetables in it, and the family with its closest relatives, and sailed to the island of Gotland, at the Baltic sea, at its "Näckros Grottorna" caves which name still tells about it in that name, as it means the name of the Fertility God, Lemminkäinen in Finnish, who's father was the Ukko Noakh, ("Sol Bocken Balder Pär" in root language, "Sun Bock Lord" The root language is still being spoken in the south of Finland and in the island of Gotland) They stayed three months in the cave, as long as the ice rushed past, and then one thousand years more, staying alive by fishing, as the ice had pushed the earth away, leaving only bare rock. They collected seaweed to the holes and crevices to speed the forming of the new earth. Later they left plenty of stone plates with carvings and pictures there, now to be seen in the Visby museum, also at Stockholm, among with huge earthen mounds in which they buried their kings and queens.

After that one thousand years there, the Ukko sent one son, Sven, to establish what we know now as Sweden, and another son, Dan, to establish Denmark, from which families their descendants formed all the royal families of Europe later on, up to more than thirty of them, according to the last Roman catholic Archbishop of Sweden, at 1527, even up to this day. But Ukko himself with his closest family returned to Finland (then Vinland) to their former home castles, that had been built for them again. (But which the Vatican army destroyed at AZ (after zero year) 1050) Then the Bock family had to flee way up to Lapland to live there for the next two hundred years, from which time we know them as "Yule Bocks", or Santas, (Ukko's family of gods was renewed at every generation).

But so, from their annals we know now that the Atlantis was both the time and the place, and the place, the ruling center, was here in Finland, in front of Helsinki, in the group of the seven islands that we know today as Suomenlinna, (the castle of Finland) on which a military fortifications were built at 18th century, which are now preserved under the Unesco treaty. (Finland was under the Swedish rule from 1050 to 1809, after that Finland was the Grand Duchy under the Russian emperors, after which we got our independence at 1917)

But was the paradise here too? Well, there were the following rules for all. Only the most beautiful and healthy youngsters were allowed to beget babies that were raised by the aunts and uncles, (boys after seven) so as the selected young ones could continue their task, in which case the girls were choosing their lovers, as the babies had to be born only from love, which thing the girls understood better, of course there were no marriages.

There was not even a word for war, it was a peaceful society. The most holy place, the rock cave temple of the Lemminkäinen, 23 km east of Helsinki was closed at AZ 987 with gravel and clay (not opened yet) as they saw that the Greek orthodox and the Roman catholic religions were closing, one from east, the other from west, with their armies, and they had no means to defend themselves. Men and women were equal but they had different ways and obligations to live. Those who were barred from having babies, practiced homosexuality among themselves, but there were clear rules for that too. The God of Fertility was the father for everybody, sun being his symbol, the King had the peacock and the moon for himself, together with the first daughter who was the Queen, and she had the Fénix bird for herself. Each person of the royal family had special clothes and regalia and birds and other animals as their symbols, lion for the Ukko, tiger for the King, bock for the seeder, from which they were separated from each other, and they are all to be seen in the flag and in the coat of arms of Finland, (the Fénix bird too) and even at the names of the blocks of the Helsinki center, still today.

People were divided into five classes, or castes of which the family of gods was the top, (pyramid scale) the two uppermost castes were the Aryans, and the lowest ones were the serfs who were not allowed to beget children by themselves, but by the men of the next upper class. All this paradise way of life ended at AZ 1050 for the attack of the army of the pope.

I still like to tell about the superstition of the people of Finland, who are the descendants of those who lived here during and after the ice-age. For example we have had stories about the elves and other fairies and small people, with only one eye at the forehead! Already the Greek historian Herodotos told about 2 500 years ago that he had heard of such men living in the Hyperborea, the extreme north, but that he does not believe for that. The fact is that the single eye is still painted inside a triangle above the front door of the main Lut-heran church here in the center Helsinki, built 1852, and on many other older churches too, although they are not very old! Well, what are we the people of today to think of that? Of course we go and ask from the "National Guru", the Ior Bock, and he says that the single eye (really, the third eye) is actually the symbol of the eye-like hole at the head of the penis, (checked) from where comes the most valuable substance in the world, the seed of all human beings! It just cannot be shown in the church just where it really is!

Also I mentioned that the "root" language was the first one! So it is, and when it went out from here, after the ice-age, they left the dots on top of some letters off, as from the word HÄLL, (fireplace, stove) what became HELL (the pronunciation is just the same) but what a difference in meaning, really, it is nothing else but the STOVE, hella in Finnish.

Look at the other Bock Saga stories from my home pages, www.leonygren.net, there are plenty of them.
