

VÄINÄMÖINEN, THE ION, THE ELECTRICALLY CHARGED ATOM, THE LORD OF ALL PEOPLE THE ANCIENT HISTORY OF THE L-ION IN THE COAT OF ARMS OF FINLAND

Yes, that's true, it was given to us by the originally Finnish born king of Sweden, Gustaf Wasa, at about 1560. Today it can be seen at the side of his coffin, at Uppsala church, in Sweden.

In it there is a standing lion, and he has a sword in his hand, but the sword was just his emblem, not to be used ever for slaying somebody, as Finland, (Vinland at that time) was free of any kind of violence, there was not even a word for war.

His sword was a symbol of his "tool", and as there are two sharp edges at the sword, they are called "eggs" (testicles) from where the seeds come. He was the Lord, Väinä-möinen in finnish, and at his three paws there are twelve toes, as he was supposed to have twelve sons, of which the first one was the coming king (Ilmarinen) and the last as the next head breeder, LEMMINKÄINEN. You may see also that the lion holds his mouth open, but he has no teeth, he is not threatening or biting anyone, he smiles!

At that time people were as smart as animals, always the most able male copulated with all females to have the best possible sons. (Now we are not that smart anymore, now anyone can...oh, never mind!)

At the bottom of the coat of arms you see a curved sabre, which is the symbol of the king, who wasn't allowed to beget children, so there is but one sharp edge at his sabre, one "egg". (Try them, they are like eggs!)

At the end of the hilt you can see a head and a beak of the legendary Fénix bird, which was the symbol of the first daughter of the Lord, the Queen. She was the sister of the king, and they were not allowed to have children with anybody, their task was to rule and teach. The Queen had six sisters, to take care of her.

One can see a weather-cock quite often at the roof of an old church, here in Finland, as the churches are a very old institution, from the pagan times, and the cock symbols teaching, spurring, as he has a spur on his leg, same as a rider at his boot, and he wakes everybody up early in the morning, to study. Those churches were information centers.

But where is the history of all this, just wait, the lion is "leijona" in finnish, but there is a part of another language in it too, the so called “root” language, spoken at the southern coast of Finland, and now the first syllable, “le”, in the word leijona, means “smile”, and the part after, “ion”, an ionic cell, the atom, so it can be traced to mean “smiling lion”, but there is more than that, that “ION” means an electrically charged ATOM! Of which the Greeks spoke already over two millennia ago.

Later, 3 600 years ago, people from Finland marched to Greek, as ION-ians!

Atom is the nucleus, the most inner part of anything, so the Lord is the father of all people on earth! You may call him also as Noakh, if you like.

His son, the main breeder, Lemminkäinen in Finnish, was dressed red with golden yellow belt, as are the colors of the coat of arms too, and the name “coat of arms” itself means the foreskin of the penis, the arm.

WE can find the same atomic “ION” from all three languages, like this: le-ION-a, le-ION, I-ION.

It’s a pity that everything cannot be translated into English or any other language either, to the point, as we have letters like Å Ä Ö that have special meanings. For example, Häll, stove, became Hell. (How much suffering this error alone has cost to the people of this globe ?)

About nine thousand years ago one son, Sven, of the Lord went to establish Sweden, but his royal line ended at 1061 AZ (after zero) year, so Sweden do not have a lion in its coat of arms, but the other son, Dan, went to start Denmark, and their royal line has continued up to this day, plus that all other European royal families have had their “seeds” from Denmark, and they have lions at their coat of arms, but on all fours, not standing.

But back to the Greek people, they say that it was the IONIAN (atomic) people who came from extreme north, Hyperborea, there to establish the high culture in their country, 3 600 years ago! (Cult of Tor, mind you) According to Platon, Sokrates and Herodotos.

Besides, Finnish coat of arms is right in the center of our flag (white bottom with blue cross, which are the colors of the Suometar, the spouse of Lemminkäinen, at her dress) to mark his role to give his seeds to her to (re) form a new family of Finnish gods, from the sagaist time of the beginning.
